THE RELEVANCE OF MAHATMA GANDHI IN THE 21ST CENTURY

Dr. Kharavela Mahanti
Retired Professor,
Department of History

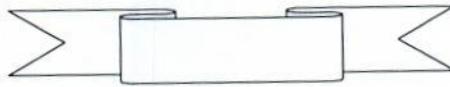

The world knows greatness in many forms. There are the great who celebrated military victories, the great who have deepened the knowledge of the physical universe, the great who helped us understand the human mind and the great who by their inventions transformed the way we live. Mahatma Gandhi stands in a category of his own. His generalship lay not in making war but in waging peace. Gandhi demonstrated a world, weary with wars and continuing destruction that adherence to truth and Non-violence is not meant for individuals alone but can be applied in Global affairs too.

Today's world, it is often argued, is dramatically different and while Mahatma Gandhi is certainly worthy of continued admiration and awe, it would be naive and unrealistic to expect his methods to be effective today. I totally disagree with this statement. I am glad to say that an increasing number of young people in India and elsewhere are today turning to him {Mahatma Gandhi} to seek solution to contemporary concerns through individual and collective action. The question to ask is now whether Mahatma Gandhi is Relevant or not, the real issue is whether we have the courage and strength of mind to follow on his footsteps, whether we are prepared to live our lives by what he preached and most importantly practiced.

Mahatma Gandhi bequeathed to us three guiding principles: Ahimsa (or non-violence), Satyagraha (or the force born of truth and non-violence) and Sarvodaya (or upliftment of all). It is the values of these principles that we have to rediscover if, we want to deal effectively with today's challenges. His was a life that millions still admire and as every great man's life, will always be shown. His words shall have relevance as long as mankind and his love for his kin survive. It is my fervent hope that the world will embrace Gandhian truth and action and that you, my young friends reading this, will be among its torch bearers. So, we all should follow the ideas and principles adopted by Gandhiji which will be more informative, instructive and needful in the present context.

Thus the life and preaching of Mahatma Gandhi can give us what will strive for throughout our lives "True sense of satisfaction and happiness".

Gandhian constructive works in Orissa and its Relevance in the present context (1934-39)

Dr Soma Chand
Ex-Professor & Head,
Department of History,
Utkal University, Vani Vihar

Plato once told,

“There are always in the world a, few inspired men whose acquaintance is beyond price”

The people of Gandhi's generation who lived a part of their life during his time, he is a reality. But to the present generation, he is gradually becoming a myth, a legendary figure whose reality neither they can visualise for they can perceive.

With the persisting threat of nuclear holocaust, growing terrorism, environmental degradation, problems of racism, exploitation, the issues of peace and sustainable development have absorbed paramount importance in the globalised world of 21st century. Under this backdrop, the need of the hour is to search for an alternative model of development. In this context, automatically the Gandhian model seems to of greater relevant to the purpose and appropriate to the present.

The basic concept of Gandhian thought lies in non-violent social change. In 1996, Gandhi peace prize winner Ahangmage turo Ariyaratne from Srilanka commented in the following manner.

“People will eventually realise with Gandhi that they need to fight not only with material poverty, but also with spiritual poverty. The 21st century must herald this struggle, but that struggle would be waged by the people themselves. It is a challenge that we have to face not only as, individual countries, but also as a global community.

Thus, in a proper sense people are the real agents of change and transformation. In this sense Gandhi was a proper mobiliser of masses. He united the people across barriers of literacy, language, ethnic identity class, caste and privilege. Gandhi advocated economically self-sufficient and politically self-governing villages breaking down the edifice of centralisation. His concern for the downtrodden, the deprived, the destitute search for socio-economic politico-cultural alternatives by combining lofty spiritual human values with public action-have inspired and sustained many to revive a sense of community feeling among for people.

The congress working committee had emphasized upon the members of the legislatures and other workers for the necessity of taking constructive programme to the three core villages between whom and their representative a direct contact can be established. Provisions of the programme were announced from a thousand platforms in 1920 and 1921 that attainment of Swaraj was impossible without their implications.

The civil Disobedient Movement was formally withdrawn on April 1934. But instead of allowing himself confined to one Place. Gandhiji set out an extensive tour programme to propagate his new mission and to collect funds for the cause. Part of this tour in Orissa was done on foot. It inspired the congress workers to propagate gandhijis philosophy among the masses in the villages and practically brought the caste Hindus and Harijans closer despite Stay cases of protest from few sanatani

The aspiration of Gandhiji was however fulfilled to a considerable extent that rejuvenated the congress workers who took to constructive works in the villages. Ashrams in the Gandhian Models were established at Bari, Agarpada which carried on pinning, popularisation of khadi , prohibition, uplift of Harijans and look after Hygienic aspect of rural life and so on.

Gandhijis padayatra and related constructive works in Orissa is a unique vision of his social reforms. His genius lay in projecting himself as the commonest of common man and imaging himself utterly to everyone irrespective of any consideration of religion, creed and sex. Though an incorrigible idealist, Gandhiji was essentially a lover of man with a loving human heart. This phase of Gandhiji's career in a way reflects his genuine feelings and ideology therein. Rightly R. N. Tagore wrote on him.

Great as he is as a politician, as an organiser and a leader of men, as a moral reformer, he is greater than all these as a man because none of these aspects and activities until his humanity. They are rather inspired and sustained by it.

Constructive programme is thus a unique technique of mass mobilisation, a real Gandhian tactic to transgress for social anomalies and incongruities. For sick-societies with sick structures –political, economic, socio-cultural devoid of values, this Gandhian method of mass activation as its fruitful impact.

The inner spirit of self-reliance, self-sufficiency humanitarian's service mingled with constructive works of Gandhian programme finds its relevance in the last part of the second decade of 21st century. The social resurgence, classless social order egalitarianism have their respective reflection for mass participation and mass involvement in democratic set up of present age. Further Gandhi had mapped out a vital role for women in the programme awakening many to a sense of their new strength and dignity as individuals. Cadets of dedicated and highly disciplined men and women could effectively impart political education on a wide scale.

Thus, in 21st century, it is a necessary foundation to purge the Indian society certain age old evils and prepare it for greater participation in every sphere in coming days.
